

To the office of the Governor or
"Public Relations Department"

Thank you for your many contributions that your state has and is making to our country. Many states are going in together to have a "National Family Day" across America on September the 27th (or close thereof). With a Halloween Holiday, Ground Hog Day, and April Fool's Day, we thought there would be a need to honor our families. Many Governors/Leaders, are trying to strengthen the "Families". As a former retired educator (Masters in Education) Hank F. Hoaldrige II, we have already received 39 positive replies. The event is called "National Family Day".

The strength of our future significantly depends on the strength of our families. As mother and fathers, husbands and wives, brother and sisters, and as children and parents, we are each responsible for nurturing healthy family relationships.

Successful family relationships require love, understanding, compassion and time.

Whether it is spending time around the dinner table talking, reading books, attending a religious service, taking opportunities to laugh, or simply offer a hug, family activities reinforce our commitment to the ties that bind. All together, they create treasured memories for years to come, teaching time-honored values to be carried from one generation to the next.

To reinforce the importance of loving, caring families in our society, "Family Day" will be celebrated across our great nation every year on September 27th (if possible). Our dreams for our children and our families are built one day at a time.

Let us therefore, focus on today and the precious opportunities that we have been given as members of "Loving Families". As I mention we have already received many proclamations from many states. If you can honor us and our committee by sending a similar proclamation (and it can be much shorter) signed by you or your governor, we will add your state to the ones we have received.

The official "National Family Day" will be signed in Washington D.C. If our good friends could respond by March 15th we will have completed the list of all 50 states.

Thank You and God Speed,

Hank F. Hoaldrige II
