At the conclusion of the hearing, it was
 V O T E D that charges brought were sustained and that said Packard be notified as follows:
 "After hearing, the charges brought against you in writing have been sustained and upon carefully considering the evidence, the Commission has decided that you be and are hereby suspended until March 10, 1946, for the following reasons:
 (a) Failure to cooperate with your superiors: The Commission finds that the Quincy Pumping Station was under the direct charge of one Mr. Pierce, Chief Power Plant Engineer; that against his reasonable judgment you left the Station on January 10, 1946, and have since failed to report for duty, under circumstances which were apparent to the effect that great difficulty was being experienced to obtain a sufficient number of operating personnel.
 (b) Failure to assume responsibilities incidental to your position as 3rd Class Power Plant Engineer: The Commission finds that you held a key position with the Commission as an operating engineer at the Quincy Sewerage Pumping Station and that your insistence on satisfying your personal convenience and postponing the work of the Commission to such convenience reflected a lack of proper responsibility.
 (c) Absence from work without just cause: The Commission finds that you first requested permission to leave because you alleged you received a lawyer's letter from Maine and that thereafter you indicated that you desired absence for the purpose of moving furniture in Maine. Further, the Commission finds that you admitted that your personal affairs in Maine might well have been postponed; and further, that you removed your license from the wall of the Station and failed to report thereafter."
